DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claims 1, 9, and 23 state that the stabilizer is present up to about 49 mol%, and the first component of this stabilizer may be present at 5-49 mol%. However, a second stabilizer component is required, therefore, the first component cannot have a concentration of 49 mol%. Please correct.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

Claims 1, 2, and 4-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Bruce et al (US 2003/0224200 A1). Bruce teaches a thermal barrier coating material comprising zirconia partially stabilized with yttria, and to which lanthana, neodymia, or tantala are alloyed to increase the impact resistance of the coating. The stabilizer may contain up to about 10 wt% yttria, and one or more of lanthana (up to 5 wt%), neodymia (up to 5 wt%), or tantala (up to 10 wt%). If a mixture of these additives is used, the concentration of the stabilizer may be up to 10 wt%. These ranges are considered to overlap with the ranges of the instant claims. Regarding claims 9-25, Bruce teaches a bond coating between the substrate and the thermal barrier coating, thickness of the coating, and orientation thereof (columnar).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, and 4-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bruce (US 2003/0224200 A1). Bruce teaches a thermal barrier coating composition as described above. Bruce includes ranges of each of the oxides present in the coating. While Bruce does not give specific examples of each of the possible combinations of oxides, one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made would have considered the invention to have been obvious because the compositional proportions taught by Bruce overlap the instantly claimed proportions and therefore are considered to establish a prima facie case of obviousness. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to select any portion of the disclosed ranges including the instantly claimed ranges from the ranges disclosed in the prior art reference, particularly in view of the fact that;

“The normal desire of scientists or artisans to improve upon what is already generally known provides the motivation to determine where in a disclosed set of percentage ranges is the optimum combination of percentages”, In re Peterson 65 USPQ2d 1379 (CAFC 2003).

Also, In re Geisler 43 USPQ2d 1365 (Fed. Cir. 1997); In re Woodruff, 16 USPQ2d 1934 (CCPA 1976); In re Malagari, 182 USPQ 549, 553 (CCPA 1974) and MPEP 2144.05.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3, 4, 14, and 15 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art of record does not teach the specific combination of the materials of claim 3, and 14. Specifically, the further addition of hafnia to the required components present in the composition is not taught by Bruce '200.
